

Software Licensing

OIT maintains a variety of software licenses for use on University-owned computers. The use of some of these software packages is restricted to public computing facilities, while others are available for installation in faculty and staff offices.

The Office of Information technology is only able to install Microsoft Office on PC's or Mac's that were purchased with University funds. However, Clarkson's software license includes a provision for a 'work-at-home' version that you may purchase with personal funds and install.
