Failure to comply with COVID-19 policies will be putting your co-workers, the University and your community at risk. Therefore, it is necessary for the University to take progressive enforcement actions if you willingly disregard policies and procedures put in place for COVID-19. Enforcement actions will be determined based on the severity of which COVID-19 policy and/or procedure has been violated.

Minor violations may result in progressive enforcement procedures.

Any violation deemed severe by the University may result in suspension and/or up to termination.

The COVID-19 enforcement procedure refers to the following possible actions, depending on the severity of the conduct:
• Informal Counseling/Coaching – conversation with the employee(s) who are not adhering to COVID-19 requirements; unofficially documented.
• Counseling and Verbal Warning – a conversation with the employee(s) who are not adhering to the COVID-19 requirements. Documented in personnel file.
• Second Counseling and Written Warning – a second conversation with the employee(s) who are not adhering to the COVID-19 requirements. Documented in personnel file.
• Final Written Warning – employee(s) not adhering to the COVID-19 requirements and have failed to take corrective behavioral actions after being counseled with one verbal and one written warning may be further disciplined including suspension and/or up to termination.

Depending on the severity, any step may be repeated, omitted, or taken out of sequence; the University reserves the right to place the employee on suspension and/or up to immediate termination should the situation be warranted. Each case is considered on an individual basis by the department and Human Resources.
